NEW PLAYING- AND VALUATION SYSTEM

In its efforts to further develop the Euro Tour and increase its attraction, tour-organiser IBPF has initiated an innovative playing- and valuation system for three of the altogether seven tour-stops in 2007. The later on explained changes are valid for the season-opening PoolComps.com Czech Open, the PoolComps.com Netherlands Open in September and the concluding Euro Tour stop in 2007, the PoolComps.com Costa del Sol Open in early December.

So what's new? First of all the prize-money, which has been raised to €50.000,00 for these tournaments, what means an increase of 25% compared with the remaining tour-stops.

Further more, the number of starters for the final-round will be extended from 32 to now 64. These 64 spots will be determined as follows. 32 spots are reserved for seeded players based on the official Euro-Tour overall rankings evaluated after the respective previous tour-stop. The other 32 players have to qualify through group-stages as before. For being directly qualified for the final round, the seeded players have to pay an increased entry-fee of €250,00, whereas the regular entry-fee is still €140,00.

Regarding the awarded points for the overall-rankings, organiser IBPF has initiated a special regulation. All qualifiers for the final round are awarded with a minimum of 275 points, unless this amount is passed by obtaining a higher finish of 17th or better. Contrary to this, the seeded players only get the points they achieve. This shall help providing a fair competition through improving the qualifier's chances to catch up points compared with the seeded players.

Theses changes do one one hand surely further enhance the meaning of being a Top 32-player. On the other hand, it also means that 32 more players will get the chance to compete in these tour-stops, as the seeded players are directly qualified for the final round and do not occupy one of the limited spots. A fact, that becomes all the more important, as the number of announcements meanwhile is by far higher than the number of available spots.
